The ONWARD Project is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit digital humanities initiative creating an immersive storytelling experience using virtual reality about the Rainbow Bridge-Monument Valley Expedition (RBMVE) study region in Northern Arizona and Southern Utah. The RBMVE was a cooperative, depression-era, multi-institutional undertaking that provided foundational scientific, social, and environmental studies of the land and peoples within a 3,000 square mile area of Northern Arizona and Southern Utah, c. 1933-1938.

Established in 2014, The ONWARD Project has continued to expand Founding Director Elizabeth Kahn’s original line of inquiry in exploring the multiplicity of story threads and perspectives that give insight into the region and era through intensive archival research, locating and collaborating with Expedition descendants, working cooperatively with Tribal cultural preservation officers, and crowdsourcing outreach to Native communities.

Archival collections related to the Expedition have been located in over 50 institutions and personal/family collections. Widespread locations include The Museum of Northern Arizona, Northern Arizona University, Ft. Lewis College, University of New Mexico, University of Utah, Autry Museum of the American West, UCLA, UC...

FROM THE PRESIDENT

JOSHUA YOUNGBLOOD, SSA PRESIDENT, 2019-2020

This October 17th I was able to host Board members, officers, and committee chairs in Fayetteville at the University of Arkansas Libraries. We discussed SSA's current business and ongoing work, including the planning and implementation of new ideas to evolve our activities to meet the future needs of our members and the communities they serve. In some ways, each executive and board meeting is part of charting the course for SSA going forward. Inspired by the 2020 annual meeting theme of “Visionary Archives,” we are looking to the future to find ways to support new and emerging archives professionals and how to make our work more relevant and impactful. From Treasurer Mike Miller’s work on helping grow our financial position to the generation of new ideas for programs and activities we can pursue to encourage potential archivists and build relationships with other organizations, SSA is looking toward an exciting few years ahead of us.

One decision that came out of the October Board meeting was the establishment of an ad hoc committee charged with investigating how SSA could pursue sponsorships or support for internships at smaller institutions. The committee emerged from a discussion led by Daniel Alonzo after the August SAA meeting in Austin. SSA Secretary Alexis Peregoy, Board Member Samantha Dodd, the President and Treasurer will join members of the Diversity and Professional Development committees, along with student archivist representatives to see how SSA can help address the need for more paid positions for those just starting out in the profession.

As a measure to meet the call for paid positions and raising the overall pay rate in the profession, we are following the lead of the Northwest Archivists who have already begun to put in place a program to ensure new professionals are paid for their temporary positions and small archives can still gain the help of enthusiastic and well-trained archivists.

Another initiative that SSA leadership is moving forward with is the possibility of endorsing the Protocols for Native American Archives Materials. Vice President Amy Rushing and I are drafting a measure to present to the members as a whole on how we can support the protocols formally. We will soon have a measure ready to be considered by the members before the business meeting in May.

The Nominations Committee received many excellent suggestions and developed a slate of outstanding candidates for this year’s election as we see new leaders emerge and consider new directions for our organization. So we will have lots of good choices to consider in the next few months. I am growing more and more excited for the “Visioning Archives” in Denton as we get closer. For the second year in a row we will be partnering with another professional group as we meet concurrently with the UNT Open Access Symposium. Vice President Amy Rushing and the Program Committee have a robust education program ready to help us embrace future challenges. Lilly Carrel and the Professional Development committee have pursued a new strategy to enrich the offerings before the annual meeting, reaching out to possible speakers to ensure we continue to have valuable pre-conference offerings.

With our 50th anniversary rapidly approaching, the need remains for all of us in SSA to think about how our organization will continue to help educate and support the work of future archivists in the southwest region. Through our work we have the opportunity to observe the histories of organizations of all types, from family business and corporations, to academic and cultural heritage institutions and community activist group, to see how they changed over time, and sometimes, how they reached the point where either no one could or wanted to carry their missions forward. Fortunately, the care of their legacies fell to us to preserve and share. As engaged members of SSA and the profession we have to continue to think how we can anticipate change and strengthen what we do—seek stronger financial footing, develop new generations of leaders, reach out to support and work hand in hand with others.

AMY RUSHING, SSA VICE PRESIDENT & 2020 PROGRAM COMMITTEE CHAIR

Thank you everyone that submitted a proposal for the 2020 SSA Annual Conference! The Program Committee has reviewed the proposal submissions and selected sessions for the conference program. We had an impressive number of proposals and I think you’ll find the program we’ve put together to be informative and engaging. The meeting theme, Visionary Archives, encouraged proposals concerning non-traditional partnerships, advocacy, equitable access for underrepresented groups, and digital preservation. We will be providing a preliminary schedule with the full list of presentations in the coming months. In the meantime, here are just a few of the panels and roundtable discussions you will see at SSA 2020:

- Latinx Lions: Using Collaborative Exhibitions to Highlight Diversity and Minority Groups at TAMUC

Location: University of North Texas, Preservation Lab
Trainers: Jaimi Parker and Justin Lemons

Description: Justin Lemons and Jaimi Parker, Preservation Technician and Exhibits Coordinator for UNT Special Collections will teach participants how to create basic exhibit furniture and how to properly mat and frame various types of materials for display. This hands-on workshop will allow participants to practice measuring and cutting mats for frames, and will teach them how to create book cradles from archival corrugated board. Included in this workshop will be an overview of framing techniques, best practices for mounting various types of materials, and time for participants to ask about their specific needs in the areas of exhibiting, mounting, and (remove and) framing, and preservation issues that go along with exhibiting archival materials.

Title: Introduction to Copyright and Fair Use for Professionals in Cultural Institutions
Date: Wednesday, May 20, 2020 (half-day)
Location: Embassy Suites by Hilton Denton Convention Center
Trainers: Yvonne Dooley and Emilie Algenio

Description: The workshop covers copyright information relevant to professionals in cultural institutions, offering a deeper understanding of copyright law and how it relates to their collections, services, and patrons. This is an introductory session; no prior knowledge or experience is expected.

Outcomes include: 1) comprehending the relationship between copyright law and the work of cultural institutions, 2) the ability to navigate the rights of creators and users, and 3) a knowledge of statutory exceptions and how to apply them in day-to-day work. Some takeaways are a high-value experience with in-person assistance, a Best Resources list, and fostering relationships between participants who will benefit by learning from each other.

This workshop will benefit attendees who deal with copyright ownership and status issues. Presenter Yvonne Dooley is the Copyright Specialist at the University of North Texas, and previously worked at the U.S. Copyright Office. Co-presenter Emilie Algenio is the Copyright/Fair Use Librarian at Texas A&M University Libraries, and currently teaches copyright for their Special Collections cohort.

Date: Saturday, May 23, 2020 (half-day, afternoon)
Location: Embassy Suites by Hilton Denton Convention Center
Trainers: Winnie Schwaid-Lindner and Vincent Barzza

Description: This is a workshop designed for digital preservation beginners. The workshop will NOT focus on technical skills or software solutions, but instead will demonstrate how to develop digital preservation policies in a way that’s broadly applicable to many SSA members with varied goals. Whether an attendee is a lone arranger, a student, or someone who simply hasn’t had any experience with digital preservation. Attendees will walk away with increased competence and confidence in knowing how to approach the preservation of digital materials, including how to determine risk factors and policies based around their own collections, and where to look for assistance if they feel out of their depth.

Digital preservation is different for every institution, every collection, and even every individual. Nobody knows an archivist’s collection better than they do, and everyone brings different skills to the table. It’s vital that everyone feels empowered and capable of making their own decisions regarding the preservation of their digital materials, regardless of skill-set and background.

This workshop is led by two Louisiana-based Digital Preservation Librarians, and will guide 20 attendees through the decision-making mindset and process behind digital preservation policies.

Early on in the project, Kahn serendipitously met Lithuania Denetso (Navajo), who was researching her grandfather, Max Littlesalt, a packer and translator for the RBMVE. This friendship has blossomed over the years into a collaborative relationship with mutual interests between The ONWARD Project and members of the extended Denetso, Littlesalt, and Austin families. Together the team has facilitated many successful community outreach and crowd-sourcing programs at NavajoNation, including those at the Navajo Nation Fair in Window Rock, Arizona, at the invitation of the Navajo Nation Museum, and the Eehanih Pioneer Day Celebration in the Navajo Mountain Area at the invitation of the Denetso/Littlesalt Family and the Naatsis’ Aan (Navajo Mountain) Chapter organization.

At these events historical photographs are shared with the Navajo community primarily to bring the records out from the archives to share with the source communities. With hundreds of images of unnamed Navajo peoples, The ONWARD Project asks for help in identifying individuals, learning more about the places and activities depicted, and understanding contemporary perspectives on the records. Is this material relevant to Navajo people today? How they would like The ONWARD Project to handle it; what they would add or leave out? People contribute information by writing on the printed and laminated images, resulting in a collection of images with crowdsourced contextual information that are now included in The ONWARD Project archive, and

Passport to Houston Archives: The Second Biennial Houston Archives Bazaar
Joseph Lueck and Lilly Carrel, HAB CoChairs

The second biennial Houston Archives Bazaar (HAB) took place on Sunday, November 17, 2019 at White Oak Music Hall. Building on the foundation established by the first Houston Archives Bazaar in 2017, the 2019 event was a rousing success welcoming over 170 visitors, archivists, and volunteers to discover local histories, share their stories, and learn to preserve them.

Upon entry to the Bazaar, HAB volunteers issued each visitor a “Passport to Houston Archives.” This passport booklet, designed by Justin Carrier who spearheaded HAB’s rebranding, served as the backbone of the event, providing visitors with a loose road map of participating repositories, available activities, amenities, and event details. Participants were encouraged to collect stamps in their passport from each booth they visited at the Bazaar, qualifying for tiered giveaways and raffle entry with each additional stamp collected. Armed with stamps, ink pads, and a collective insatiable desire to spread the word about Houston-area archives, repository representatives, volunteers, and exhibitors doled out stamps to visitors as they interacted with each booth.

Visitors took part in several activities, staffed by welcoming volunteers, with intended educational outcomes. At the Houston Time Capsule, visitors were encouraged to add their voice to the archives. Bringing with them a photograph or document to donate, or taking the time to write a letter or draw a picture on-site, visitors of all ages learned about archival preservation firsthand, properly foldering and housing their items or creations. Capsule contributions ranging from children’s artworks to flyers and digital recordings were added to the Archivists of the Houston Area (AHA!) records at the Woodson Research Center and “buried” under a 50-year access restriction.

At the Digital Memories Booth, visitors learned the basics of digitization and personal digital archiving from professional archivists. Texas Collections Emergency Response Alliance (TX-CERA) provided wet salvage and recovery demonstrations, educating visitors on material recovery procedures. The Texas Historical Records Advisory Board (THRAB) staffed an Ask-An-Archivist booth, providing answers about archives, archivists, institutions and everything in between.

The Oral History Storytelling Booth buzzed with activity, with demand far exceeding the time slots available during the Bazaar. Houston natives and newcomers of all ages shared stories about their lives and experiences in the city, capturing the spirit of the HAB and actively preserving the stories of its visitors. Oral history stories collected at the Bazaar will be added to the growing collection of HAB oral history stories in the Archivists of the Houston Area (AHA!) Records at the Woodson Research Center.

Post-Bazaar surveys indicated that visitors and exhibitors alike viewed the Passport activity as a means with which to foster meaningful conversation. In addition to incentivizing visiting a wide range of repository booths and activities, the Passport served as an icebreaker, providing common ground on which to facilitate conversation.

Visitors meandered the Resource Gallery, having conversations, making connections, and collecting passport stamps from exhibitors representing over twenty repositories from throughout the Houston Area. The 2019 gallery featured both familiar faces and newcomers; repository representatives took turns exploring all that HAB had to offer and meeting with other local archivists, in many cases for the very first time.

Visit the HAB website at https://houstonarchivesbazaar.org for more information about the next event, which is scheduled for Sunday, November 19, 2023.
The Bazaar was made possible by generous contributions from our sponsors, including University of Houston Libraries, Rice University Woodson Research Center, Texas Historical Records Advisory Board, Houston Community College, and the Society of Southwest Archivists. White Oak Music Hall again accepted HAB’s participation bid in their COLLAB community outreach program, and numerous local organizations and individuals provided in-kind donations supporting the Passport Program and operations of the event.

The Bazaar would not have been possible without the hard work of the planning committee and day-of volunteers. Thanks to their dedicated efforts, the Bazaar lives on.

At its core, the Houston Archives Bazaar serves to facilitate meaningful interactions between the Houston community and cultural heritage institutions and resources available to them. The 2019 Bazaar did just that, engaging repositories, volunteers, and the public within the context of a shared interest in archives and preserving Houston’s stories for future generations.

The Oklahoma Archivists Association recently hosted their second Oklahoma Archives Bazaar on October 26, 2019 in Oklahoma City. This event is held biennially and modeled after the Austin Archives Bazaar. Designed with members of the public in mind, the Bazaar gives participating institutions the chance to connect with potential users to share their collections and expertise. This year 22 institutions from across the state of Oklahoma were represented. Guests enjoyed activities such as a workshop on personal digital archiving by JA Pryse of the Carl Albert Center, a banjo performance by Lucas Ross of the American Banjo Museum, door prizes, an interactive booth, and more!

This type of event is a great way to generate excitement surrounding all things archives, museums, and libraries. It also gives information professionals from varying backgrounds and locations a chance to connect and socialize!

While doing an inventory of unprocessed maps and blueprints at the Denton Municipal Archives, I came across a survey map of the Denton Municipal Airport dated November 1928. This turned out to be the little known, if not forgotten, first municipal airport in Denton, TX that operated from October 1928 to December 1937 and I wanted to know where it was located.

The October 2, 1928 edition of the Denton Record-Chronicle talks about the festivities surrounding the opening of the airport and mentions its general location as, “three fourths of a mile northwest of the courthouse.” I was surprised at how close to downtown that sounded and wanted to further pinpoint its location. Comparing this map to current maps of Denton I was able to get a general idea. The map shows the airport situated between Pecan and Cottonwood Creeks, so my best estimation was that this airport laid somewhere west of Carroll Blvd., east of Fulton St., north of Panhandle St. and south of University Dr.

I tried to find other relevant articles, but found nothing that pinpointed its location. After a few days, I decided to reread the October 2nd article and realized I had missed something! Mentioned in that article were the names of participants in the opening day festivities, one of which I recognized immediately.

On the back of that photograph were the words “Opening Denton Airport 1930.” Since the airport opened in 1928, I believe the date is likely an error in memory or an approximation from when Fuller donated his papers in 1963. Regardless, if this photograph exists surely there must be others, especially considering the Denton Record-Chronicle article notes that Fort Worth Star-Telegram photographers and representatives were in attendance.

I contacted archivists at The University of Texas at Arlington (UTA), which is home to the Fort Worth Star-Telegram’s photographic archives and a sizeable Texas cartographic collection, but was unable to find anything to aid in my search. I also contacted the Briscoe Center for American History, the Texas General Land Office and The Newberry Library in Chicago, which holds the Rand McNally archives, but none of them had maps or photographs of 1930s Denton. I found only two institutions that had maps from the proper era, the Texas State Library and Archives Commission and the University of Chicago, of all places, but neither had the detail I required. I found myself quite surprised and frustrated that the 1930s presented such a black hole in my quest. Great Depression aside, this was the Golden Age of Flight, how could there be so little information about Denton’s first Municipal Airport?

I was able to find brief accounts of activities in City Commission Minutes from 1928 and in several Mayoral Reports from the City Secretary Records, 1892-1976, but nothing of a location. I reached out to city and county departments and obtained a 1942 aerial photograph from City of Denton GIS Analyst, Cody Yates, but was unable to identify anything recognizable to me as the remnant of an airport. Two local historians, DJ Taylor and Mike Cochran, were able to provide me with some contemporary accounts of the airport, which corroborated the general location I had identified, but could take me no further.

Stuck, I put my search on hold for a while before revisiting it again, from the beginning. I reread that October 2nd article and found I had missed something, again! This time, the penultimate sentence which I skipped over in search of “more.” It read, “A circle 100 feet in diameter was traced with white rock near the center of the field...” I had dismissed the circle in the map that started this search as some arbitrary symbol denoting the center of the map, never realizing this was an actual, physical feature of the airport.

Surely, if rocks sat there for nine years they would leave a depression in the ground or even still be there! This is where I am especially thankful that Mr. Yates sent me that 1942 aerial photograph. When I looked at it again, like a slap in the face, there were the remnants of a perfect circle, just east of Alice St. situated between Emery and Cordell Streets. This was my Eureka! moment. Still, I wanted to be able to better determine where the airport used to be in relation to today’s topography.

Since the survey map was drawn to scale, I digitally sized it to the circle in the aerial photograph to plot the road intersections on the map. I then georeferenced those points with current satellite map data. The resulting image satiated my own curiosity and I hope that I could provide something fun and interesting for the people that now live there.

The Carl Albert Congressional Research and Studies Center is a unique and nonpartisan institution that strengthens representative democracy through scholarship, learning, and service. As the Center continues to work towards progressively exhibiting digital materials from the vast repository, it has become essential to address personal politics, public opinion, and the political representative’s views on human and social rights issues.

Students from the School of Library and Information Studies, the Department of History, and the Price College of Business, at the University of Oklahoma, have worked collectively to construct a digital platform to view repository materials with collections currently focused on: Education – segregation, integration, immigration; Women’s Rights – fertility, voting, Equal Rights Amendment; LGBTQ+ issues – education, protected rights, health care, hate related crimes; Voting Rights; Civil Rights; and Gun Rights.

The diversity of student interpretations and educational focuses, not only have shaped a fascinating depiction of American history, but has created an opportunity to engage a wide variety of individuals with the opportunity to relate to personal experiences. The Center has found that the ability to visually witness progress over time, often leads to greater understanding of current historical processes and policies. The unique archival materials within the Center’s collections provides a rare ‘behind-the-scenes’ look into the impact of thought combined with action, which is rarely represented to the public front.

The Center’s collections represent the American public which consists of over 300 million individuals, each with his or her own personal beliefs, values, attitudes, and opinions. The Center houses millions of pages of correspondence from constituents declaring their opinions to their representative, hoping to be heard on issues that affect their families, their friends, and the United States as a society. These views and opinions, written by all ages of individuals, examine the lives of the American people on a personal and visceral level, at times.

It is impossible to imagine where the United States was as a society one hundred years ago, and how quickly U.S. citizens have created real progress over a very short amount of time. It is unmistakable that forming an equal environment for all is a long, tumultuous road for which the American people still trudge. The topics of immigration, segregation, and basic human rights, has a long history in public policy with strong personal views both for and against.

23 SOUTHWESTERN ARCHIVIST
One constituent, from California, writes to Congressmen Lyle Boren on June 14, 1943 on their view of immigration:

The bill to end Oriental exclusion is a war-hysteria bill. Its passage will destroy 60 years’ work to keep our Pacific Coast white. Present laws bar aliens’ ineligibility to citizenship. Blundering idealists press to destroy our present protection.

Another, from Oklahoma, writes to Congressmen Lyle Boren on July 25, 1945:

We are interested in the matter brought before the public lately by Robert St. John. Since the refugees he mentions are all intelligent people, and educated above the average, why cannot these people be allowed to enter the U.S. permanently as a part of their country’s quota for naturalization? Hoping that you are as interested in helping those people as we.

As the student’s interests span throughout the variety of collections, focuses develop into topical collections of their own. Education, for example, created an opportunity for insight into how the University of Oklahoma has evolved from an all-white school into an inclusive community of all ages, races, beliefs, and opinions. The idea of a young, black, woman, roped off, isolated from her peers, is incomprehensible to students of modern time. The thought of segregated eating or studying quarters is so removed from the students of 2019, that it seems as if it could be hundreds of years ago,

Yet, in 1948, the President of the University of Oklahoma, George L. Cross, writes to OU Faculty (as a whole):

In a letter dated January 31 (1948), the Attorney General states: “the Board of Regents of the University of Oklahoma is not and would not be justified in formally or otherwise admitting or decreeing the admission of, and hence may not lawfully admit, said negro applicant at this time.” You are, therefore, instructed to refuse admission to all negroes who have applied or who may apply for admission to the university of Oklahoma.

It is often times, unfathomable, to comprehend the ideology of society past, nevertheless these stories exist in their own time in history. The positive responses towards desegregation is also held within the collections.

A young man, aged nineteen, from Bartlesville, Oklahoma, Winston Weathers, writes Governor Robert S. Kerr in 1946:

As a white resident of the first district of the State of Oklahoma, I urge you to act in the University of Oklahoma case involving Ada Lois Sipuel who was denied admittance to that school. I urge that you support legislation that will abolish such a law of segregation in our educational institutions.... In an age when we are all so earnestly endeavoring to achieve freedom throughout the world and are sincerely striving to build up good will among the nations, what a poor example the State of Oklahoma is setting in this instance...

The year 2019 has come and gone and so has the 2019 DFW Archives Bazaar. The 2nd annual DFW Archives Bazaar was held on November 2, 2019, in Denton, Texas. In keeping with the spirit of the town of Denton, the DFW Archives Bazaar was hosted at the Patterson-Appleton Arts Center.

Surrounded by historic machines and community works of art, 179 attendees chatted with archivists, curators, librarians, and more from 40 Dallas-Fort Worth institutions.

Attendees could stop by booths to talk with institutions such as Ursuline Academy who highlighted their historic laptop collection or the Dallas Way who discussed their efforts to document the LGBTQ community in the area and their partnership with the University of North Texas Special Collections.

Attendees also had the opportunity to visit the Archival Experience room where archivists answered questions on preservation and digitization and offered advice on entering and navigating the archival professions.

The DFW Archives Bazaar went off without a hitch thanks to the 117 volunteers who staffed the institutional booths, welcome tables and collected attendee analytics.

Given the size of the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex, it has been the mission of the DFW Archives Bazaar to be hosted around the metropolitan area to allow for greater representation among participating institutions. Participants ranged from big to small and federal to local institutions. This year saw 16 new participating institutions to the DFW Archives Bazaar.

We are excited to announce that the 2020 DFW Archives Bazaar will be in Fort Worth, Texas. Follow the DFW Archives Bazaar on Facebook (@dfwarchivesbazaar) and Twitter (@DFWArchives) for details. If you or your institutions are interested in participating, email dfwarchivesbazzar@gmail.com.
The Dallas Historical Society at the Hall of State in Fair Park is pleased to announce the release of the Hermine Tobolowsky ERA Papers. With the celebration of the Centennial of Women's Suffrage, we are proud to honor Hermine Tobolowsky for her efforts in the passage of the Texas Equal Rights Amendment (ERA). The previously unprocessed collection ranges from the start of Tobolowsky's work on the Equal Legal Rights Amendment in 1957 to the final ratification in the election of November 7, 1972. The U.S. Senate had passed the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution on March 22 of that year, but the required majority of states failed to ratify it by the 1982 deadline. Today, Texas remains one of only 37 states to have passed its own ERA.

In March 1957, she began her campaign to repeal all of Texas's discriminatory laws against women. By 1959, she was president of the Texas Federation of Business and Professional Women (BPW) and was legal counsel for the federation's national organization. It was then that she traveled to Austin with several others to testify for a bill giving married women control of property that they owned before marriage or acquired afterward by gift or inheritance known as the Separate Property Law. She faced stiff opposition - including ridicule by several legislators - so she, as part of a coalition of women's groups, decided instead to champion a blanket equal rights amendment to the Texas constitution. One lawmaker handed her a cigar, challenging her to smoke it because she acted like a man.

At the annual convention of the state BPW, Tobolowsky proposed researching the state legal code, documenting every statute that discriminated against women, and drafting one amendment to invalidate them. Her research identified 44 such laws and culminated in her writing the Texas Equal Legal Rights Amendment. The recommended amendment stated that equality under the law should not be denied nor abridged because of sex, race, creed, or color. She trusted that framing it in terms of equal rights for all people, everyone would understand its meaning.

In the mid-1960s, the State Bar of Texas endorsed a new Family Code and a separate law that would allow women to own and manage property. In 1967, the Family Code passed in the Senate but lost in the house. Four years later, in 1971, the Texas ERA passed both the House and the Senate. On November 7, 1972, Texans voted by a four-to-one margin to ratify the Equal Legal Rights Amendment.

Tobolowsky was responsible for repealing or amending 33 discriminatory Texas laws and passing several other civil-rights laws. Including laws extending the homestead exemption to singles and equal custodial rights to fathers. She was chosen Texas Women's Political Caucus Woman of the Year in 1975 and was inducted into the Texas Women's Hall of Fame in 1986. She continued to advocate women's issues and practice law until her death in 1995. Her colleagues mourned her as the "Mother of the Texas ERA." The Dallas Morning News commended her as a "mighty oak." The BPW's tribute added: "When you think of equality the state of Texas is a better place to live for both men and women because of Hermine Tobolowsky."

The Hermine Tobolowsky ERA Papers includes resolutions, speeches, press releases, newspaper clippings, printed materials, research notes, correspondence with the Business and Professional Women's Club, the Texas Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, signatures and correspondence from the U.S. and Texas State Representatives and Senators. Texas Archival Resources Online (TARO) had an eventful year and look forward to other exciting years as we work to revamp the TARO site! In 2019 we were awarded an NEH grant to redesign the TARO site, we continued to expand our membership, participated in the "Toward a National Archival Finding Aid Network" (NAFAN) initiative, and held Steering Committee elections in November.

News and Accomplishments
NEH implementation grant
In March 2019, we announced that TARO was awarded a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH). This implementation grant will allow us to redesign the TARO site and provides funding to hire a software developer for 2 years and a metadata librarian for 1 year.

New member repositories
In 2019, we added new repositories as part of the New Member Initiative (Summerlee Foundation grant funded project). Under this project, repositories create Word finding aids, which are reviewed by our QA Finding Aid Subcommittee, and then sent to a vendor to get encoded. The EAD finding aids returned by the vendor are then reviewed by the QA team before uploading to the TARO server. Here is a list of our participating repositories to date, they have all signed a project agreement:

1. Harris County Archives (2018)
3. Fort Worth Jewish Archives (2018)
5. Catholic Archives of Texas (2018)

In November 2019, a batch of 29 EAD XML files from Harris County Archives, Catholic Archives of Texas, and Lamar University Archives and Special Collections were uploaded to TARO.

We continue to add repositories as part of our regular process (https://tinyurl.com/yhekyeys). In 2019, the Emily Fowler Central Library of the Denton Public Library and the Texas Christian University (TCU) joined TARO. We also started the process with the Vertebrate Paleontology Archive at UT Austin.

It’s very exciting to share news of our increased membership! This truly shows how vibrant our community is because current members continue to add content to the TARO site and new repositories are joining.

Participation in NAFAN

TARO and representatives from multiple regional finding aid aggregators with input from expert advisors engaged in discussions to explore the creation of a national archival finding aid network that could transform the archival description landscape. The action plan is a key deliverable of the grant funded project and outlines next steps to build on the work and discussions of the past year.

Looking Ahead

- January-December: continue to recruit repositories to participate under the Summerlee funded New Member Initiative.
- February: Kick-off, in person meeting of the Steering Committee and Subcommittee chairs with the software developer.
- May: TARO Brown Bag at SSA in Denton, Texas.
- May/June: Metadata librarian hired under the NEH grant will start work.
- November 30: New TARO membership period deadline for January.

You can find other information about upcoming work and the TARO redesign timeline here https://tinyurl.com/yftm4twa

Thank you!!!

Thanks to Samantha Dodd and Paul Fisher for their service as Steering Committee At-Large members.

We all have a role to play to ensure TARO continues to be a vibrant and dynamic community resource! You can add your finding aids, help us recruit new repository members, get involved with one of the subcommittees, participate in the TARO Brown Bag at SSA, and/or provide your feedback as requested by TARO reps.
